they could sail again to the same places. Also insight into ancient metals (gold, copper, tin, etc) mining, transportation (by sea) and refining processes. Maps, illustrations. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful.

In this seminal archaeoastronomy text, symbologist Donald J. McMahon unveils astounding revelations about the nature of the invaders of Ireland and the scope of seafaring trade in the ancient world. Combining his expertise in symbology with a passion for mathematics and geometry, a fascination with sailing and celestial navigation, and a lifetime of experience working in metal processing and raw material management, McMahon is uniquely qualified to recognize visual and cultural patterns that have remained undiscovered for five thousand years. In painstaking detail, the book centers on the curbstones and mounds of Ireland, examining the questions of what, where, who, why, and how ancient seafarers came and went from the Emerald Isle. It goes further, pursuing Ireland's relationship to the development of the great dynasties of the Nile Valley and their need for metals, particularly gold and copper. McMahon pays tribute to the achievements of ancient peoples who looked to the celestial bodies to chart their world. Replete with figures and diagrams, the book illustrates how the Egyptian ankh, pillar, and staff were actually navigational instruments, how megalithic constructions served as maps, and how the enigmatic Irish symbols contained tightly held trade secrets. This groundbreaking work opens new doors in the worlds of antiquarianism, archaeology, and cultural anthropology.

About the Author Donald J. McMahon has spent a lifetime working in specialty metal processing and raw material management as a mathematical statistician and inventory control expert. Through the years, he has also developed knowledge and skills in celestial navigation, pattern recognition, pictograms and hieroglyphics, angle measurement and geometry, Biblical math codes, and symbology. His cultural heritage is the Irish McMahons and the Scottish MacEwens. Having inherited Dupuytren's contracture, McMahon was intrigued to discover that the condition of hooked fingers traces back through the Scottish to the Vikings and to the ancient Egyptians. All of these interests come together in his seminal archaeoanthropology text, A Seafarers Decoding of the Irish Symbols: the Oldest Testament, 3200 to 2500 BCE.
