2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Very informative By Jan Hintze I really didn't know very much about Lewis and Clark. The Audio CD was very well done and informative. It also had a bit of humor in it. The reader did a fine job.

With Thomas Jefferson's purchase of the vast Louisiana Territory, the U.S. President was one step closer to realizing his dream of a nation spanning the oceans. The next step was exploration of this new geographical possession. Thus began the unbelievable 4-year odyssey chronicled on 8 audio compact discs in Lewis Clark: The Great American Expedition. When Meriwether Lewis joined William Clark to jointly head the Corps of Discovery, their quest would lead to an enduring record of happenstance, heartbreak, and hope. Featuring unforgettable exploits and indelible characters such as Sacagawea, the young Shoshone mother who led the Corps upriver in 1805, this is an audio treasury of courage and adventure. About the Author About the Producer, Joe Loesch: An award-winning author and acclaimed audio-book producer, Joe Loesch was nominated "Spoken Word" producer of the year by the AFIM Indy Awards for audio-book production. He has also won several Silver Microphone Awards and the Communicator Crystal Jade Award of Excellence. Years of experience as a musician, singer, actor and voice-over talent give Joe a unique perspective as a producer. His vision for blending compelling voice talent with appropriate music and tasteful sound effects leads to the creation of audio products that give the listener hours of enjoyment From AudioFile A full cast of audio performers presents the Lewis and Clark Expedition in a series of eight stand-alone productions suitable for broadcast. Taken from the diaries of Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, as well as from those of several other members of the Corps of Discovery, the series follows the explorers from the creation of the Corps to its members' final resting places. Different voices lend realism to the stories, but individual performances, overall, are perky rather than excited, awestruck, terrified, or despairing as situations suggest. Music and special effects sometimes obscure the spoken word. Still, for a middle school audience, this production would make the story more fun than dull. R.P.L.
