WelchMining the stories and biographies of Bethesda Lutheran Church is some of the most important analysis that can be done to understand our congregations identity and mission. The overt spirituality, ministries and leadership of a church are like the branches of a tree, recognizable even by newcomers who can identify the worship style, pastors and available programs. Fewer people, though still many, notice the trunk of the tree - the Lutheran theology and organizational systems like council, staff, and volunteer opportunities. More rarely still, do we attend to the deepest layer of a church - the narratives, context, and local wisdom. This is the root system of the congregational tree - invisible to the naked eye, but inspirational to the open ear. This collection of stories is offered to both tell the story of Bethesda and to guide and challenge the work of carrying Gods mission through Bethesda into future generations. ~Pastor Tom Welch

Bethesda Lutheran Church in the Danebo area of Eugene, Oregon was established in 1900. Beginning with ten Danish immigrants, the story of the church continues through 2015. There are stories of those ten families as well as those who came during the Depression years and into the 1950's.

About the Author Judy Trumbo Jernberg is a native Oregonian who has lived in the Danebo area of Eugene, Oregon all her life. She is a writer, volunteer librarian, avid reader, gardener, one-time backpacker and Oregon traveler.
